

Existing literature

Research on a topic or issue, has to be connected to the existing literature. Often time a research must be based on the sources that are available. An issue that a researcher want to research will become problematic if that researcher cannot find any sources on the issue. Furthermore if the topic is being investigated is a current one, the researcher would need to find sources that fairly new.

Existing literature is central to carrying out research.

Libraries are excellent sources of existing information . In addition to this , they also have connections with online journals and databases that you can use inside the library or use if you are a member of the library.

There are many types of Libraries , from public libraries to university and school organization. Organization such the United Nations and various government organizations may also have a library . Click Here for information on public libraries and their uses.