

Distribution and Characteristics of Landforms resulting from Plate Movements

Introduction: Plates are always moving and as discussed previously these movements may result in the occurrence of natural disasters. The movement of plates not only result in threats to life and property but landforms are also created. The video below will prepare you on this topic.

